ADOPT NEW RULE TO STOP OBSTRUCTIONS

Of the Democrats—House Committee to Report Favorably on Paper Trust Resolutions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., April 8.—To further thwart the democrats in their filibustering tactics the House today by a strict party vote, adopted a rule giving power to the presiding officer without a roll call to declare the House in recess every day at five o'clock the following morning at 11:30, the rule to run until Monday night next.

Agree on Report.
By a unanimous vote the House committee on the Judiciary today agreed to report favorably on the "paper trust" resolutions introduced April 2, by Speaker Cannon. One resolution directs the attorney general to inform the House what steps have been taken to investigate and prosecute the International Paper company of New York and other corporations and combinations engaged in the manufacturing of wood pulp or print paper.

Other resolutions direct the secretary of commerce and labor to inform the House what steps have been taken by the bureau of corporations towards investigating the alleged "paper trusts."

Chicago, April 8.—Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota passed through the city today. He discussed the presidential question freely, saying: "I am a candidate for the presidency in a sense. If I gain the nomination I shall accept it and make every effort to be elected. I am not making any personal campaign and do not expect to seek instructed delegates. Any insinuations or assertions that my candidacy is being advanced by James J. Hill and his interests is absolutely false. I have fought him several times and have never received a word of encouragement from him or any similar source."

U. S. ARMY DESERTER STARVES HIMSELF TO PROVE THEORY
James Gallagher, who fled from Ft. Snelling last October, was Conscience-Stricken and Had Suffered Much.

James P. Gallagher, a deserter from Co. I, 28th Infantry, stationed at Ft. Snelling, Minn., after a long looking after, gave himself up to the police department here today. He told City Marshal Appleby that he took French leave of the U. S. army on the sixth of last October. At first he was successful in his efforts to secure employment but the dread of discovery and humiliation compelled him to move on and finally, after wandering from coast to coast, it became increasingly difficult for him to secure work. He was literally on his uppers and badly in need of food when he reached Janesville, and decided to surrender and take whatever might be coming to him. The city marshal telegraphed Major F. M. M. Bond, the commanding officer at the Fort and received a reply directing the officers to take Gallagher to Ft. Sheridan, which is located about 20 miles northwest of Chicago. Officer John Brown escorted him thither on a morning train.

POLITICAL FIGHT BITTER IN NEW ENGLAND STATES

Taft And Anti-Taft Forces Are Struggling For The Delegates To Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boston, Mass., April 8.—The fight between the Taft supporters and the opposition for delegates to the republican national convention is on in earnest throughout New England. Every inch of ground is being bitterly contested. During the past few weeks the Taft managers have undoubtedly been making gains, but the time remaining is now too short for them to hope or expect Taft instructions in any of the New England states.

The appointment of delegates from the six New England states to the republican national convention at Chicago is as follows: Massachusetts, 32; Connecticut, 14; Maine, 12; Vermont, 8; New Hampshire, 8; Rhode Island, 8. Total, 82.

Republicans of Rhode Island have already held their state convention and decided to send an un instructed delegation to Chicago. The Massachusetts state convention will be held in this city day after tomorrow. The state conventions in Maine and Vermont will meet at the end of this month and New Hampshire and Connecticut will hold their conventions a week later.

An unbiased canvasser of the situation leads to the conclusion that Taft sentiment in New England is probably strongest in Connecticut and Maine. Massachusetts appears to be about evenly divided between Taft and the opposition. Various estimates are made as to the division in the state. Those friendly to Taft say he will get 27 delegates and the opposition will get the other five. Another estimate gives Taft 20 and Hughes 12. However, reliable estimates may be it seems pretty certain that the state convention here this week will decide on an un instructed delegation. The Taft men undoubtedly will fight for instructions, the opposition will oppose them, and there may be a compromise under which Secretary Taft will be mentioned in a complimentary way.

The delegates-at-large from Massachusetts to the Chicago convention will be Senators Lodge and Crane, ex-Governor John L. Bates and either ex-Secretary of the Navy John D. Long or Sidney O. Hildney of Attleboro.

In Maine the Taft sentiment has been steadily gaining. A few weeks ago there appeared on the slightest chance that the state might instruct for Taft; or for anyone else. But since that time the Taft boom has assumed large proportions. Senator Frye, who is president pro tem of the senate, and a man of consequence in New England politics, has declared his adherence to the candidacy of Secretary Taft. Ex-Governor John F. Hill, national committeeman from the state of Maine, is another of the party leaders in the Pine Tree State who has come out openly for the Secretary of War. All of this would make it seem certain that the Maine delegation will be distinctly favorable to Taft, but whether the state convention will go to the length of instructing for him is doubtful. Much will depend upon the results of the Massachusetts convention this week.

The men slated for delegates-at-large from Maine are Fred J. Allen, president of the Maine senate; E. P. Tucker of Poland Springs; ex-Governor Hill of Augusta and Judge Charles J. Dunn of Orono.

New Hampshire promises to send an un instructed delegation to the national convention, the majority of the individual members of which will favor the candidacy of Secretary Taft. The minority will be inclined to support Hughes, but will swing behind the candidate whose star is in the ascendant at Chicago.

The situation in Vermont appears to be about the same as in New Hampshire. Some of the party leaders have declared for Taft and others for Hughes, but the great majority have not defined their attitude. Should a sudden change in conditions lead Massachusetts to instruct for Taft it is possible that the two northern states might follow the example. Otherwise it looks like a certainty that both states will send their delegates to Chicago without instructions.

Things have been going Taft's way in Connecticut recently. The leaders in that state are not inclined toward an un instructed delegation. Two-thirds of the delegates will be for Taft, however, according to present indications, and those who are not solidly for him will not be sufficiently opposed to him to be considered as making a fight to keep Connecticut out of the Taft column. There are various rumors for the strong hold which Taft has upon the people of Connecticut. Not the least influential of these is the fact that the Secretary of War is a Yale graduate, and there are many alumni of that college domiciled throughout the state.

IMPORTANT DATE IN HISTORY OF CHURCH

Archdiocese of Baltimore Was Established One Hundred Years Ago.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Baltimore, Md., April 8.—Today marks an important anniversary in the history of the Roman Catholic church in the United States. It was just one hundred years ago, on April 8, 1808, that the archdiocese of Baltimore was established. At the same time four important dioceses (now archdioceses) were constituted, as follows: New York, with Bishop Connon as its first bishop; Boston, with Bishop Cheverus as its first bishop; Philadelphia, with Bishop Egan as its first bishop; and Hartford, with Bishop Flaget as its first bishop.

Prior to this important event there was but one Catholic bishopric in the United States, that of New York, who was appointed as the first American bishop for his diocese. One hundred years ago there were not over sixty Catholic priests in the United States and not more than seventy churches. The newly established metropolitan see of Baltimore, with Bishop Carroll at its head, and the four suffragan sees of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Hartford, constituted the Catholic Church organization of the United States.

Up to the days when the Irish families of 1847 brought thousands of immigrants to swell the Catholic population of the country, one metropolitan see that of Baltimore, and one archbishop sufficed for the entire country. But before 1850 the number of bishops had increased to over twenty. Today the 1,000,000 communicants of the Catholic Church in the United States are looked after by four metropolitan archbishops and ninety bishops, and there are more than 12,000 churches.

The centennial of the archdiocese of Baltimore is to be observed by an elaborate celebration to be held here the latter part of this month. The celebration will be held immediately before or after the annual meeting of the Roman Catholic archbishops in Washington and the meeting of the trustees of the Catholic University in that city. It is expected that all of the members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in the United States will be present at the celebration.

One of the features of the celebration will be the consecration of Mr. Daniel J. O'Connell, rector of the Catholic University, as titular bishop of Sebaste. The consecration will be performed in the historic Cathedral of St. Mary's in this city, with Cardinal Gibbons officiating.

What Is Going On in New York City Told in Interesting Manner

Newport Belle Is Free to Wed Again

NEW YORK.—The divorce litigation brought by Mrs. Nathalie Schenck Collins against Charles Glen Collins, formerly of the English army, ended the other day in an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Lovett, which makes Mrs. Collins free to resume her maiden name and to re-marry.

Miss Nathalie Schenck, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spotswood Schenck, was a Newport belle who married Glen Collins in 1904. She met him for the first time at Georgian court, George Gould's Lakewood home, where she was attracted by his flashing play polo. Mrs. George Gould introduced him to Miss Schenck after the game.

There was a rapid courtship. He was by repute a captain in the Cameron Highlanders. In reality he had once been a senior lieutenant in the regiment and was called captain by courtesy. By repute again he had an income of $50,000 a year and was of noble family. In reality he had an income of a few pounds a month and came from a good, but inconspicuous Scotch family.

Miss Schenck was supposed by Collins to be wealthy in her own right. As a matter of fact she had no private fortune and her parents were in moderate circumstances for people in their social position.

She and Collins were married at Monterey, Cal., in the spring of 1904. They started on a honeymoon trip around the world. They sailed from San Francisco with a retinue of servants, a string of polo ponies and a formidable load of baggage.

Honolulu, the first port of call, was the terminal point of the honeymoon. Their funds ran out, they discharged the servants, sold the polo ponies and returned to America. It was said at the time, by pawing some of the bride's jewels.

After a short stay here they went to France together, but soon separated. Mrs. Collins returned to her parents. Collins was declared a bankrupt and left the English army. It was reported last fall that he had gone to work as a potter in the works of the Grueby Pottery company of South Boston.

Bargains Offered Along Bride Line

MARTY KESSE, keeper of the city hall, is incensed at the daisy gentleman with the sandy wistaria trailing over a couple of Queen Anne shoulders and the lump of business incense on the frontal, who is handing out to timid marriage-license applicants, in Marty's city hall, bunches of cards announcing a closing-out sale in Third avenue of baby carriages, rolling pins, potato mashers, skillets, flatirons and other woman weapons that are handy to have about the house in case of a variance of view-point.

If he doesn't stop it he is going to get an entirely new set of artificial bumps installed forthwith that will make his business bump look like the surface of the bride's first cake.

City Clerk Scully and ex-Coroner Edward Hart, and Stewart Harris, his assistants, didn't know a thing about the card peddling along the line at the time that the three thousand nine hundred and seventeenth license (since January 1) was issued at closing hours of the marriage shop the other day.

The Barker has had diplomacy enough to shun the inner sanctum so far. Stewart Harris said when told of the card game he'd just like to see him come inside.

But Marty is wrought up—Marty, who never can go into even the board of aldermen's chamber without talking off his hat. Clerk Harris and Hart have troubles enough as it is, they say, without having now ones laid on their shoulders.

The man with the baby carriages for sale defended his position when Marty Kesse said angrily to him, "Censor, my good man, censor!" on the ground that he is really a philanthropist.

These goods, he says, are guaranteed to last for many, many years, and, what is of even more importance, so he says, baby carriages will be much higher the minute all the tunnels to Brooklyn, not to mention the new bridges, are in working order. Furthermore, the president is likely to dip into the cause of baby carriage panic at any moment. You can see yourself what will happen as soon as he issues a message on the subject.

Gateses Withdraw from Wall Street

WITH the verification of the report that Charles G. Gates had sold his seat on the stock exchange there is chronicled the last element in the withdrawal of the Gateses from active personal participation in the affairs of Wall street.

Mr. Gates sold his seat for $54,000, which marks another new level drop in the price of seats, the last previous sale having been at $59,000. Mr. Gates sold his seat for the same amount at which, in 1901, he had purchased it. Since then seats on the exchange have sold as high as $95,000. When the firm of C. G. Gates & Co. was dissolved last year the quoted price was $79,000.

This sale by Mr. Gates drops the final curtain on the stock exchange career of himself and father, John W. Gates. The firm, in which the latter was a special partner, was, previous to its dissolution, one of the largest speculative firms in Wall street, and was a powerful factor in market affairs. Its change transactions were very large and its personnel of customers formidable.

When father and son left for Europe after the dissolution of their firm Wall street believed their losses had run up into the millions because of the decided turn of the market against the position which they were believed to have maintained. The Gateses stated then, however, that they had not incurred the losses that were attributed to them.

Although John W. Gates was not a member of the stock exchange, he was one of the largest operators of his day. Besides the firm of C. G. Gates & Co., he was connected with several other commission houses. As for the Gates firm at the time of its dissolution, John W. Gates said that during its career it had done about eight per cent. of all the business done on the stock exchange. In addition it had done a huge volume of business on the other exchanges and in the outside market.

New Yorkers Careless Regarding Wealth

THE recent panic served to bring to light in a striking manner the carelessness of the average New Yorker in regard to his money. The largest institution in the city which was forced to close its doors after a run, and is now attempting to reorganize, is seriously hampered in its efforts to get the sanction of its depositors for the plans mapped out because there are more than 500 such depositors, with deposits of more than half a million dollars, who are lost, estrayed or stolen.

When the depositors' committee began its work of securing consent for the scheme of reorganization it discovered that half a thousand depositors seemed to have forgotten all about their money. Two whose deposits were over $20,000 each were found after weeks of search and much expense, and both were surprised to discover that they had this money on deposit, since all record of it had escaped their minds. That anyone should forget a matter of $20,000 cash seems unbelievable, yet the records show that more than 500 persons have done this. In one case a now wealthy man had deposited $12,000 in 1884 and had forgotten all about it. He was therefore surprised when informed that he had nearly $25,000 standing to his credit.

Still further evidence of the New Yorker's carelessness in regard to money is given by the fact that in the case of this one institution are more than 100 accounts standing in the names of persons deceased whose families or executors have never even obtained letters of administration. In view of these figures it seems probable that many million dollars are in New York banks whose owners have forgotten about them.

They Really Believe It.

Some people cling to the old-fashioned idea that a man must be a genius if he goes about with uncombed hair.

Warranted to Keep.

The playful element was never entirely absent from the late Prof. Drummond's class in natural science at Edinburgh university, and Dr. T. Hunter Boyd, in his book, "Hearty Drummond," ascribes its frequent cropping out to the professor's own sense of humor, which encouraged naturalness.

On one occasion Prof. Drummond announced that unfortunately he could not meet the class next day, as he had an important engagement. The students heard that he was absent on account of his sister's wedding.

On the day following, when a geological specimen was passed round the class, it was prominently labeled: "Drummond's wedding-cake."

It is said that the professor was as quietly appreciative as any member of the class.—Youth's Companion.

He Took Them Home.

The suburbanite stood on the back platform of the car, smoking his morning cigar. He struck up a conversation with the conductor, when that brass-buttoned gent was not busy.

"Whatever became of that basket of eggs that was left on your car?" he inquired.

"I took them home," gloomily replied the conductor.

At the astonished look from the passenger the conductor explained: "You see, any article left in my car is mine if no one puts in a claim for it within six weeks. The six weeks wore up yesterday, and the company told me to take the eggs away."

"Too bad," said the passenger.

"Notion," said the conductor.

Table Talk.

Old Gobsa Golde looked thoughtfully across the centerpiece of mauve orchids at his son.

"Well, Scattergood," he said, bending forward to light his cigar at one of the shaded candles, "your course in life will be far easier, I can see, than mine was."

Young Scattergood Golde smiled with good-humored condescension.

"How so, governor?" he patronizingly inquired.

"I," said the old man, "began at the bottom and worked up. You have begun at the top and will slide down."

A Distinction.

Five-year-old Deborah had been invited to take luncheon at a restaurant with Miss K.

"Do you like cocoa?" she was asked.

When the answer was "Yes," the beverage was duly brought, but remained untasted.

At last Miss K. said: "Why don't you drink your cocoa, Deborah, when you said you wanted it?"

"I didn't say I wanted it," replied the child, politely; "I only said I liked it." — Woman's Home Companion.

WANTED HIM TO UNDERSTAND.

Haughty Customer Informed Butcher of Her High Rank.

"Ye needn't think because ye see me goin' an' comin' be th' back iv Malcolm Goldborough's mansion, that O'm wan iv th' common servants iv th' house," said the haughty customer to the unenvied butcher.

"Oh!" ejaculated the fat little man, abruptly turning obsequious, "are you a family connection of the great Goldboroughs, ma'am?"

"O'm more than a mere connection, sir."

"Pardon me," added the butcher, gazing patronizingly at this personage, "you're one of the family that's been abroad and whom I haven't had the pleasure of meeting before, perhaps?"

"Ye'll hav' t' go higher than that."

"Not Mr. Malcolm's new wife?" gasped the fat little man. "I didn't have a suspicion that he—"

"Higher, mon. O'm higher."

"Higher?" uttered the perfectly bewildered butcher.

"Yis. O'm th' cook!"—Bohemian.

POOR FRITZ MADE A MARTYR.

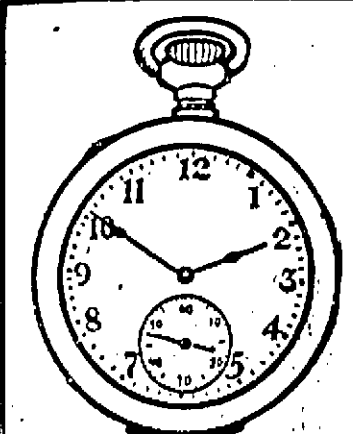

German Schoolboy Victim of Father's Misunderstanding.

The Katholische Schul-Zeitung of Berlin tells this story to justify its indorsement of the imperial order against the use of foreign words: "At one of the high schools the scholars were ordered to appear before a committee of ophthalmologists for examination, with a view to correcting defects in vision and arresting the progress of eye troubles. One scholar received from the head master a note for his father which read: 'Today's examination showed that your son Fritz is predisposed to myopia. Something must be done with him.' Next morning Fritz appeared with this note for the head master: 'As soon as I read your note of yesterday, for which I thank you, I gave Fritz a sound thrashing, which, I hope, will do him good. If he ever does the same thing again let me know.' The school authorities have been instructed to use 'shortighted' instead of 'myopia,' hereafter."

An Impertinent Question.

"Your wife," impertinently asks a message errand advertisement, "is she as fair and fresh as the day you were married?" We are out of sympathy and accord with those who scoff at marital felicity, in the first place; in the second place, the word-play is old and obvious. Besides, either answer might precipitate trouble.

Chicago, Apr. 8.—The great liquor contest in Illinois has resulted in a drawn battle, with the saloons winning decisively in most of the larger cities, but losing in scores of smaller ones, 1,014 saloons being voted out of existence.

The returns, as collected by townships, are even more impressive from the prohibition viewpoint, 828 townships, or three-fourths of the total number, being closed to the saloon.

Only by winning in the larger cities did the liquor interests save themselves from a complete rout.

SUDDEN DEATH OF ABRAHAM L. BRICK

INDIANA CONGRESSMAN PASSES AWAY IN SANITARIUM.

WAS UP FOR SIXTH TERM

Bright's Disease Fatal to Representative, Who Left Washington for Indianapolis Recently in Good Health.

Indianapolis, Ind., Apr. 8.—Abraham L. Brick of South Bend, congressman from the Thirtieth Indiana district, died Tuesday at the Fletcher sanitarium. Acute Bright's disease is given as the cause of death. He came here last week to attend the Republican state convention. Representative Brick was nominated recently by the Republicans of the Thirtieth district for his sixth term. A question has arisen as to whether another nominating convention will be necessary or whether the district and county chairmen are empowered to fill the vacancy.

The funeral will be held at South Bend at two o'clock Friday afternoon. Mrs. Brick left Washington for South Bend at noon Tuesday and will not come to Indianapolis.

Sketch of His Career.
He was born in this (St. Joseph) county, May 27, 1860, and graduated from South Bend high school, and later attended Cornell, Yale and Michigan universities. Began practice of law in South Bend in 1883. In 1886 was elected state's attorney for St. Joseph and Laporte counties; elected to congress in 1888, and at each election since he was re-nominated by the Republicans by acclamation. Mr. Brick was a member of the committee on appropriations and chairman of the sub-committee having the disposition of several hundred million dollars, also member naval, military affairs and territorial committees. He was regarded as the best lawyer in the house and was largely responsible for the present form of Hawaiian government, having written many of its laws.

His Death Creates Surprise.
Washington, Apr. 8.—The news of the sudden death of Indianapolis Tuesday of Representative Brick of the Thirtieth Indiana district came as a complete surprise. When Mr. Brick left here a short time ago he was apparently in the best of health. Mr. Brick was one of the most useful members of the house. He rendered conspicuous service on the committee on appropriations and always was relied upon to vigorously support his committee on the floor of the house. Personally Mr. Brick was very popular and his untimely death was a great shock to his colleagues in the house. Mr. Brick is the fourth member of the present house to die.

Cupid's Opportunity.
The lights went out in the Dudley street terminal the other night about five o'clock, and everybody's evidently kissed his best girl, for the air was full of screams of delight and delicate remonstrances.—Boston Record.

A Danger Avoided.

It was a wise young man who paused before he answered the widow who had asked him to guess her age. "You must have some idea about it," she said, with what was intended for an arch sidelong glance.

"I have several ideas," he admitted, with a smile. "The only trouble is that I hesitate whether to make you ten years younger on account of your looks, or ten years older on account of your brains."

Then while the widow smiled and blushed, he took a graceful but speedy leave.—Youth's Companion.

Balzac in Church Pew.

The woman who had left a volume of Balzac in the church pew on prayer meeting night felt a little bit ashamed when she asked for the book, but the sexton assured her she need not feel that way.

"Many things are left in the church," he said, "and some of them are a whole lot less respectable than Balzac. After each service the pews yield a strange list of forgotten or discarded articles."

DURHAM WHITE STEVENS, M. W. CHUNG.

San Francisco, Cal., April 7.—The murderous attack on D. W. Stevens by two Koreans, M. W. Chung and L. Wong Chung, was only a forerunner of troubles for the Japanese and their sympathizers. Mr. Stevens was attached to the Japanese diplomatic service as legal adviser and in Japan's recent subjugation of Korea he played an important part. So bitterly was Mr. Stevens hated by the Koreans that he was termed "the renegade American."

The shooting occurred at Mr. Stevens was leaving San Francisco for Washington. He had just alighted from an automobile accompanied by the Japanese consul at San Francisco, and was attending to the checking of his baggage when he was attacked by L. Wong Chung, Chung's revolver, which was hidden in his handkerchief, fell to work and he then attacked Mr. Stevens with the butt of his revolver. Mr. Stevens overpowered him and Chung ran away, with Stevens chasing him. Just then the bystanders were horrified to hear the report of a pistol in the hands of M. W. Chung, who was standing in the crowd. Chung's first shot missed Stevens, but hit Chung, inflicting a serious flesh wound. The second and third shots were better aimed, and Chung was immediately surrounded and pinned to the ground, and only through the most strenuous efforts of the police was his lynching prevented. It was developed that the plot to kill Stevens was a far-reaching one, and according to the testimony of Chung, authorities are expected against the Japanese and Japanese sympathizers over the country by the Koreans.

Durham White Stevens.—A born in Washington, February 1, 1852. He was just 21 years of age when he received the appointment of secretary of the United States legation at Tokyo, and left the Colombian law school at the national capital to assume his post. His work as an American diplomat attracted the attention of the Japanese government, and in 1883 he was invited to become a member of the bureau of protocol, which had charge of the negotiation of all foreign treaties. Success again attended Stevens, and in 1887 he was transferred to the Japanese legation at Washington to act as adviser. Before that he successfully adjusted the differences between Japan and China, which had threatened war in 1881.

In 1900 Stevens represented Japan in the negotiations of treaties between that country and the United States and Mexico. From that time until the conclusion of the Russian war he was attached to the Japanese embassy at Washington. When he was transferred to Seoul to act as adviser to the Korean government under the armed which, saved the Japanese government control of the smaller country.

Stevens' power practically was supreme throughout the period which transformed Korea from a semi-independent state into an absolute dependency of Japan.

Throughout this transaction and during the grave crisis when Japanese troops put down the rebellious Koreans Stevens took a leading part in directing the course of Japanese procedure. His wide experience and his tactful method did much to bring calm to the disordered region.

The Koreans were naturally resentful at the official part Stevens had taken during this crisis. The Japanese government showed its appreciation of his service by bestowing upon him a life pension, which supplements several decorations with which the Japanese emperor had invested him.

Now, with the Korean crisis over Stevens was taken back to his old post in Washington, where he was about to resume his duties as counsel and adviser to the Japanese embassy.

Imitating His Elders.
Young folks are quick to pattern after their elders, had habits as well as good. A little Rochester boy was sent on an errand by his mother to the grocery store, and when he came back he was contentedly eating a banana. "Where did you get your banana?" asked his mother. "Bought it," he replied, quietly. "But I gave you no money to buy one," she objected. "Oh, well," he said, nonchalantly, "I told Mr. Brown to let me have two, and I would drop in and pay for them next week." That was beginning the credit system at an early age.

Alum for Household Use.
Alum should never be absent from any household. It has a very good effect if applied to bleeding wounds, as it checks the loss of blood. Boiled in milk in small quantities it is good for toothaches. It must be held in the mouth, not swallowed. For bleeding of the mouth or tongue, a wash in cold water in which alum has been dissolved is very effective.

In 1900 Stevens represented Japan in the negotiations of treaties between that country and the United States and Mexico.

MUST HAVE ASTONISHED BRUIN.

Hunter Dropped from Limb and Brute
Shot Up in the Air.

"I never fooled a bear but once in my life," said an old California hunter. "I was hunting quail with a light gun one day, when I suddenly met a very large bear. I was willing to pass without speaking, but Bruin was mad about something and bristled up for a fight."

"So I let him have both barrels, and then cut for a tree. The shot dazed him for a minute, and then he gave chase, and pretty soon came clawing up after me. There was a long, projecting limb on one side, and when I saw him coming, I got out to the extreme end, although it bent like a reed under my weight."

"Out came the bear after me, slowly and carefully, and with every step the branch bent lower. When the bear got within two yards of me I was within ten feet of the ground. Then I dropped down, and, as the bear shot up 20 feet in the air, I made for home as fast as I could run."

By Appointment.
In the dimly drawing room on a keen winter's night sat Sweet Seventeen, smiling entrancingly at Ardent Twenty-One. Sweet Seventeen was uncommonly bewitching and Ardent Twenty-One was uncommonly earnest.

Gazing intently into the gold-red heart of the great log fire that blazed cheerfully in the grate, he poured forth his passionate address. "How divine!" murmured Sweet Seventeen.

But the young man frowned and started. "How divine? My dearest Ill-lary!"

"Ill-lary?" he said. "You mean George, pot, do you not?" The maiden flushed and bit her lip.

"Oh, dear," she said, "how foolish of me! I was thinking that this was Saturday night!"—Tid-Dits.

SECRETARY TAFT

Dr. Lyman Abbott contributes to the last number of the Outlook an interesting article on Secretary Taft. The most interesting statement is a quotation from President Roosevelt. Dr. Abbott had been talking with the President about Taft, and the President said:

"I can't get along with some men that I can't get along with. We were together in Harrison's administration. I was civil commissioner; Taft was solicitor-general. I got on Harrison's nerves, and whenever I came into the room he set his fingers drumming on the desk before him as though it were a piano. But Taft had no difficulty. And yet he was always a man of highest ideals."

The Wall Street Journal in commenting says:

"So Roosevelt got on Harrison's nerves, and whenever he came into the room where Harrison was he affected him so much that Harrison sought relief by drumming on his desk with his fingers as a man will when under extreme nervous tension. Roosevelt got on Harrison's nerves, not because he was a man of the highest ideals, for Harrison was a man of ideals himself."

"He got on Harrison's nerves because of his own nervous intensity. President Harrison himself later described the way that Roosevelt affected him by saying that Roosevelt was always wanting to reform everything between sunrise and sunset; and Harrison, with his legal and practical mind, wanted to do one thing at a time and in orderly fashion."

"Now, may it not be said that President Roosevelt has 'got on the nerves' of the businessmen of the country, not because of his high ideals and great policies of reform, but because his mind has moved with greater intensity and rapidly than the average business mind of the American people? He has sought to do too much at one time, and his methods and language have set the fingers of credit drumming on the desk of business."

"Now, it will be noticed that Roosevelt says that Taft, while always a man of the highest ideals, had no difficulty in getting along with Harrison. He did not get on Harrison's nerves, and, significantly enough, Taft's presence in various grave emergencies of the country in the past eight years has never resulted in increased nervousness or excitement. He is like Roosevelt in ideals and aims, but like McKinley in ability to promote harmony and good will. Roosevelt has been a splendid pioneer. He has cleared the ground on which Taft may build."

This brief outline of the two men, Roosevelt and Taft, is so true to life that it will be readily recognized and appreciated.

Roosevelt is the idol of the masses because he is the type of American manhood which the people worship. Energetic, impulsive, courageous and honest, he fills the public eye so completely that no room is left for censure or criticism.

"The president can do no wrong" is the great rallying cry of the masses today and should be consent to be a candidate for another term, no republican convention would dare to turn him down.

President Roosevelt is a great man, and his name will live in history alongside of Lincoln's and McKinley's, but he has accomplished his mission, and it is fortunate for the nation that he will not be his own successor.

He is also wise in deciding to go abroad for a year, so that the new administration will not be embarrassed by his presence. That Taft will be nominated to succeed him, and be elected, there is no reasonable doubt. That he is the best man for the place is also generally conceded.

Taft combines with many of Roosevelt's characteristics, conservatism, and the happy faculty sometimes called policy, which the president thoroughly ignores. He possesses the faculty of conciliating people who do not agree with him, without sacrificing principles or policies.

DON'T BE A PESSIMIST

The story is told of an eastern banker who addressed an association of businessmen, the other day. Before he left he was called upon by a merchant who said to him: "Why don't you bankers who have the ear of the public and the power of speech, say something that will be encouraging and tend to dissipate that sentiment of depression and despair which is so fatal to business enterprise?" Then he handed the banker a card which he had printed, and which read something like this:

"We are doing pretty well today, thank you."

"How are you?"

This is the right spirit. Men are largely influenced by surroundings. The man who starts out in the morning, will be found in a doctor's office, when he gets down town. If every man he meets stops him to tell him how sick he looks, and this is largely true of business.

When people generally talk hard times the atmosphere becomes blue, and depression is the natural result. While it is always well to look conditions squarely in the face, and prepare for contingencies, it never pays to paint a dark picture.

The panic from which the country is just recovering was unlike any other panic ever experienced. It was not the result of continued hard times, but the climax of a long era of continued prosperity.

It was a panic that only affected a portion of the country's great industries. It was a rich man's panic, but while large fortunes melted away like dew in the morning sun, the farmer and men in moderate circumstances, escaped to large extent.

Corporate wealth, invested in railroad and industrial stocks, suffered heavy loss, but the more widely distributed wealth of the country remained intact, and is in that condition today.

Labor has suffered to some extent because labor is dependent upon the employment of capital, but conditions are improving, and there is every reason to believe that before the year closes, employment will be found for all classes of artisans.

It is well to take a hopeful outlook and look on the bright side of life.

THE CHIEF JUSTICESHIP

The election of Mr. Barnes to the office of supreme judge is gratifying to thousands of voters who were glad of an opportunity to defeat the present incumbent, Judge Bashford. The contest between these two candidates was intensely bitter and money was spent freely during the campaign.

The action of Mr. Barnes in retiring from the railway commission, was commended at the time by conservative men, throughout the state, and they were pleased to endorse him by their support yesterday. This was an element of strength in Mr. Barnes' campaign, as was also the church fight which friends of Mr. Bashford unwisely inaugurated.

The defeat of Mr. Ruger, the home candidate, is regretted by his many friends, who gave him loyal support and hoped for his election. Returns show that he had a good endorsement in his home county. The Barnes support is readily explained, for it was a rebuke to Bashford on the part of voters who feared that he might win out.

The friends of Mr. Ruger have the satisfaction of knowing that he conducted a clean and dignified campaign, and they have no occasion to regret that they supported a man in every way qualified to fill the important office to which he aspired.

When he entered the race, Mr. Barnes was not a factor, and the outlook was for a contest between himself and Mr. Bashford. His friends have the satisfaction of knowing that the latter is defeated.

All sorts of arguments were used to defeat the park proposition: "The present owner was making too much money on the deal"; "Property not worth the price"; "Bad location—too near the depot and saloon district"; "An extravagant waste of money"; "Promoters going too fast—needed a cooling down." The kickers of various kinds were in the majority and so the plan failed.

The people of Milwaukee have the satisfaction of knowing that they will have a city government satisfactory to a majority of voters, and that it will not be a scandalous Mayor Rose has a strong personality, and is popular.

Better Rose than Ridel, his nearest competitor. The time is not far distant when it will be necessary for the two old parties to combine against social democracy.

The law and order sentiment is growing and several towns in the state voted the saloon out yesterday. It remains to be enforced. The "blind pig" is worse, in some respects, than the open saloon, but if the law and order sentiment is strong enough, they will not be permitted to exist.

The support of Taft, throughout the state, is a surprise to everybody, for it was generally conceded that the senior senator would have no opposition. From the present outlook Taft will be nominated before Wisconsin, which is at the foot of the list, will have an opportunity to vote. The favorite son from the Badger state is unfortunately located.

Emma Goldman crossed the Canadian border, a few days ago, and had some difficulty in getting back. The Canadian people liked her so well that they tried to persuade her to take up her abode with them, but Emma is partial to American soil, and declined the invitation.

The city election was practically free from politics this year. This is as it should be. Good men for office are more readily secured, when party lines are ignored, and good men are of more importance to city government than office-seeking politicians.

Evelyn Thaw will succeed in getting a divorce, if the money holds out, and her husband will continue to be insane so long as the family has a bank account. The Thaw case has been a plague for the legal profession for many moons.

REALLY "OUR BEST PEOPLE"

Class That May with Propriety Be Termed Aristocrats.

All men are created equal, but they don't remain so, asserts a writer in the Cleveland Leader. Some raise themselves above the rank by their minds; others by their goodness; a third set by their services to the state.

The individual character and the individual energy make for uplifts in a thousand different ways. And when these qualities descend from generation to generation, growing like a rolling snowball, there naturally comes a class of men and women that can be called, with all propriety, "our best people."

There's an aristocracy of intellect, of good breeding, of lofty purposes, of humanitarianism, of love of country and home, of the spirit that strives and the power that conquers. Men and women of wealth belong to it by virtue of themselves, not their treasures. But the cheap, vulgar, shallow people who have money and money alone, and those still cheaper people who mimic them as far as possible, think that "our best people" are only those who have great wealth and who spend it with a brass band accompaniment.

WHAT WAS THE GOOD OF IT?

Willie Wanted the Good Things of Life, Not Its Vanities.

Willie is six years old, with a brother and sister two and four years older, and these two were recently invited by Mrs. Blank to a little party, much to the discomfort of Willie, who was slighted. When the other two children had gone, Willie's mother was doing what she could to smooth his ruffled feelings.

"I heard Mrs. Blank talking about you, Willie, the other day," she said, "and she said you were the handsomest boy in all this town."

Willie didn't say anything for a moment, and then he lifted his big, brown, tear-stained eyes to his mother's face.

"Well, mamma," he half sobbed, "what's the good of being beautiful if a fellow don't get invited to no parties?"—Young Ladies' Journal.

He Couldn't Pay.

The weakened old woman who keeps the candy store saw the pretty boy gazing longingly into the window. He was such a pretty boy that she got a touch of sentiment and called him into the shop.

"Here, little boy, is a stick of candy for you," she said.

"Oh, thank you," replied the boy, and started off with the candy.

"Aren't you going to pay me with a kiss?" said the woman.

The child's face showed dismay. He gazed first at the candy, then at the deeply wrinkled and not-over-clean face above him. Finally he said, hesitatingly:

"If I keep this candy must I kiss you?"

"Yes,"

"Here," he exclaimed, giving her the candy.

He Had It.

He is a kindly and ambitious clerk in a shop, eager to please, but with limitations. He has a memory for the wants of his customers which to that extent is excellent, but it has small regard for minor details whose accuracy does not affect business, and his customers are tolerant.

Some time ago when the talk of denatured alcohol was considerable a customer asked him for some, but he said that the proprietor had not yet placed any in stock. When the same customer was in the store on another errand he beamingly exclaimed:

"Oh, Mrs. Blank! we've got some of that good natured alcohol now if you want it."

Start a New Paper.

"I have often wondered," said the idiot to the publisher, "why you fellows have never started a magazine called Rumor. It would be a corking success."

"I fail to see why," returned the publisher.

"Because Rumor circulates rapidly and extensively," said the idiot.

"And what would you have in it?" asked the publisher.

"That's just the point," said the idiot. "You couldn't have anything in it. The less there is in a Rumor the greater will be its circulation."—John Kendrick Bangs, in Broadway Magazine.

Not Drifting

There is such a thing as drifting in business and professional life. Just loading along day by day, taking things as they come. Such a course does not get a man anywhere except nearer to the Porch. Dr. H. H. Zeller in his dental work is not a drifter.

He has a definite policy. He works towards an end. That end is to please his every patient just a little better than his competitors. Does this policy win? The facts are, his dental practice has grown during the last seven years until he has by far the largest dental business in Janesville. Good work will win out. Vigilant effort to avoid hurting also wins out. Reasonable prices ought to appeal to your better judgment also. Try him for your next dental work, and you too will be convinced that he makes good. Eye Denotes Bodily Condition.
The eye has a habit of registering the health. Thus a lack luster, heavy lidded expression is generally the result of excessive fatigue or ill-health; a dilated pupil usually means fever; a yellowish tint to the white of the eye bespeaks biliousness, while an extreme bluishness of the white is often an indication of impure blood or a scrofulous tendency.

WHITELIGHT CLUB HELD NOISY SESSION

Frank Miller, Otis Walkley, and John Conroy are serving terms in jail as result thereof.
Five Whitelighters were enjoying a little social session with Christ Wright at his place on South River street last evening, when Officers Mason and Fanning drove up with the patrol wagon and took the party on a spin to the city lock-up. After "tussling the cat" at regular intervals for some time the members in attendance grew alternately affectionate and quarrelsome. Mr. Wright, who had $33 on his person, was sitting in Otis Walkley's lap when Officer Mason's attention was first attracted to the place but a moment later there was a big row over the ownership of an umbrella and Brother Jack Conroy threw a box of grease at Bro. Walkley's head. In municipal court this morning Wright paid a fine and costs of $3.00, Frank Miller went to the county jail for 8 days; Walkley for 8 days; and Conroy for 10 days. The police released Tom Fitzgerald and Homer Watson on their promise to go into the country to secure work. Mark Griffin, who has been serving a long term in the county jail, has completed his time and is now in North Fond du Lac.

FORTY-FIVE WERE IN CITY LOCK-UP

Last Evening Was the Biggest Night of the Year at Officer Peter Champion's Beat.
Forty-five lockers were sheltered in the city lock-up last night. Landlord Peter Champion says that this is not only the biggest record but that he believes any hotel in the city to show a larger transient guest list for the same evening. Such of the visitors as could not find berths on the cement floor roosted on top of the iron cage. This morning twenty boxes of bread and 8 gallons of coffee were required to feed the horde.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Install Officers: Janesville Garrison No. 19 of the Knights of the Globe met in regular session last evening at Good Templars' hall and installed the following officers: Supreme Judge, W. E. Field; Judge, Alfred Summers; President, Herbert Marcus; Vice President, J. Clinton Stanton; Commander, Philip Butler; Lieutenant, Commander, Peter Marcus; Ensign, Albert Nott; Provost Marshal, Will Bradford; Quartermaster, E. H. Peltan; Adjutant, C. F. Penney; Guard, W. B. Rorer. They will hold a special meeting next Monday evening in the Spanish War Veterans' hall, where they will initiate a large class of candidates.

Had Long Run: This morning the first alarm was turned in from box 131 in the first ward. After a long run through the heavy muddy roads the fire department found that a burning chimney in the home of D. B. Lampman at 157 Pearl street was the cause. The fire was quickly extinguished and did no damage.

Revival Meetings: Evangelistic meetings in the Methodist church continue to grow—rain storm a drawback last night. Meetings in the Methodist church continue with unabated interest. Last night's rain storm broke into the crowd, but in spite of the bad night there was a good attendance. Mr. Hart did not preach his sermon on "Hell" owing to the fact that most people present were already believers in the doctrine. He will in all probability preach from the subject to night. Tomorrow night he will speak on "The Sin of the Tongue and Carls." All are cordially invited.

Gymnasium Exhibition: Next Tuesday evening the annual gymnastic exhibition of the Y. M. C. A. athletic department will be held in the auditorium of the building. WE are in the midst of construction work in the remodeling of our store, which will be when completed one of the handsomest clothing stores in the state. A continuous glass front on Milwaukee and Main streets filled with the choicest clothing and furnishings the country produces will greet the eye in the near future.

During these rebuilding operations we are making special inducements for buyers to visit us, and the fact that even during the inclement weather of the past few days people have traded generously and have saved money thereby, indicates that they know and appreciate real bargains. To mention specially the various items and prices offered in this immense stock during the REMODELING SALE would be quite impossible. Every article is included, and while the price reduction is not deep on any one, there is enough difference to make the saving on your purchases an important thing.

THE KAISER'S NEW CASTLE HOHKONNIGSBURG.

The Hohkonnigsburg is the largest and finest castle in Alsace. In 1889 the town of Schlettstadt presented it to the German emperor and his majesty at once decided to have it restored. The work is now being completed and it is said that the emperor himself will inaugurate the building with much ceremony at no very distant date. When the castle came into the emperor's possession it was a typical twelfth century ruin, but his imperial majesty has had it restored so that it is now practically as it was in the days of its grandeur. In 1147 it belonged to the Hohenstaufens and from their hands it passed into those of the dukes of Lorraine. Part of the cost of the work has been defrayed by the emperor, and the reigning Alsace-Lorraine society made a grant of 1,100,000 marks.

EVANS IMPROVING FAST.

The "servant problem" has no terrors for the home that knows

Shredded Wheat

Being ready-cooked and ready-to-serve it is a boon to the housekeeper who is called upon to quickly prepare an appetizing, nourishing meal. Something to "lean upon" when cooks fail and servants fail.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven, pour milk over it (hot milk in winter) and a little cream. If you like the Biscuit for breakfast you will like TRISCUIT (the Shredded Wheat wafer) for luncheon, or any meal with butter, cheese or marmalade. At your grocers.

The "Servant Problem" is Easy

"Light" Returns Are Heavy

A seeming paradox, but an actual truth. When we say light we mean ELECTRIC LIGHT. Electric Light is a good investment for any energetic business man intent on increasing his trade. Light attracts, and the brilliantly illuminated store, other things being equal, will get the business.

Astute merchants, realizing this truth, become lavish users of Electric Light, and then watch their sales increase.

Let us explain how cheaply we can illuminate your store.

MANIC RACE.

LA FOLLETTE FARED BEST

In the City Though the Defeat—
Was Equally Divided with Taft—
Janesville Gave Ruler
722 Votes.

There being no organized opposition to the republican city ticket in Janesville, James A. Fathens was re-elected city treasurer; H. L. Maxfield was re-elected city attorney; Arthur M. Fisher was named as school commissioner at large; Stanley D. Tallman and Charles H. Lange were chosen as judges of the peace, by handsome majorities. Local interest centered in the outcome of the proposition to purchase the Mitchell property in the Fifth ward and the vote on presidential delegates and candidates for the supreme bench.

Park Proposition Lost
The Mitchell property purchase plan was lost by 145 votes. Only two wards—the First and Fifth—registered a decision in favor of the project and the majorities were slender ones in each instance and decisively offset by the big unfavorable vote in the Second, Third, and Fourth wards.
There is good reason to believe that the proposition owes its defeat not so much to an unfavorable attitude towards parks in general or even a park in that locality, as to a sentiment which seemed to be quite prevalent that the stipulated price of $15-000 was from $1,000 to $5,000 too high.
Many of those who voted in the negative maintained that by reason of the city's refusal to permit switch-track connections there, the property was a "white elephant" for any other purpose and that in view of this bargain terms should have been offered. The vote by wards was as follows:

NO YES	NO YES
1st Wd., 105 109	4th Wd., 145 125
2d Wd., 195 115	5th Wd., 52 125

Presidential Delegates

The city, taken as a separate entity, elected a mixed La Follette and Taft delegation. The voting was very close but the La Follette men had a shade the better of it. Brumder (La Follette) led all of the candidates for the state delegation with 499 votes.
Estes (Taft) was second with 455.
Cooper (La Follette) was third with 540. Fairchild (Taft) was fourth with 519. Stephenson and Peterson (La Follette) each had more votes than Homstad and Winkler (Taft).
Barnes (Taft) led the candidates for election as district delegates with 484 votes and Martin (La Follette) was second with 431. Wilder (La Follette) had 422 to 418 for Nelson (Taft). Among the democrats there was no opposition and Aylward, Hoyt, Mason, Wisnes, Hicks, and Hodges received about 150 votes each in the city. The city vote on La Follette and Taft delegates was as follows:

Judicial Vote in City
In the contest for the state supreme bench the city gave William Ruger, Sr., 722 votes. Barnes was second with 212 and Bushford third with 156. The vote was as follows:

Ruger				Barnes				Bushford

Buchholz Won in Second Ward

The second ward was the scene of the only contest of the day for aldermanic honors. Alderman George Buch-holz (republican) rolled up 239 votes to 182 for Ex-Alderman Edward Baummann (democrat), giving the former a majority of 57.

The Newly Elect

The newly elected officers in the wards are as follows:
ALDERMEN—(1) Wilbur F. Carlo
(rep.); (2) George O. Buchholz
(rep.); (3) William W. Watt (rep.);
(4) John J. Sheridan (dem.); (5)
George W. Richardson (dem.).

ruff (rep.); (2) M. P. Richardson

mer (rep.); (2) Wallace E. Watts

(4) E. J. Gokey (dem.); (5) Wm. E.

Punching and Freak Ballots

What occurred in the Third ward was probably typical of the balance of the city. Many headless voters swung the curtain shut at the machines and then, forgetting to pull a party lever, had to call for help.
Some couldn't find the judge they wanted to vote for, and the park question, despite the fact that the facsimile diagram of the face of the machine had been published several times in the newspapers. Better preparation will be absolutely essential at the fall election when a much larger vote will be polled. There were nine defective delegate ballots in that ward. Five evidently became confused and cast their ballots into the wrong box. Four voted for everybody on the ticket. One voter put a cross only after the name of Isaac Steple-man. The last named partial ballot, of course, was counted. Brumder and Perry Wilder each had the same kind of a friend. One man voted the whole Taft ticket and then crossed it in favor of La Follette, indicating a wavering attitude which was not definitely settled until he was inside the booth. Two voted for La Follette delegates and then wrote out instructions to them to vote for that candidate. The total vote in the Third ward was 341 and 247 printed ballots were cast for delegates, showing that 91 neglected or purposely ignored that department of the contest.

JUST ESCAPED BOLT
FROM THE HEAVENS

Henry Taylor Narrowly Escaped
Death From Lightning Yesterday Afternoon.

While at work plowing with a four horse team, Henry Taylor who resides on Milton avenue narrowly escaped death or serious injury from a bolt of lightning which struck within ten feet of the spot he was at work on. All four horses were knocked to the ground and Taylor was dragged over the plow, severely injuring his side.
The shock was so violent that it was some time before one of the horses was able to rise. Mr. Taylor is confined to his bed with his injuries but felt no shock from the lightning. The bolt dug a large hole in the field where it struck.

STRONG DRAMA WAS HERE LAST NIGHT

Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon Appear in "The Walls of Jericho."

Before a small audience Alfred Sutro's drama "The Walls of Jericho" was presented at the Myers theatre last night with Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon in the leading roles.

"The Walls of Jericho," which was first produced in London some three years ago and scored an immediate success, is a play scoring a certain phase of English society life.
It has a English social life with remorseless truth. Its lesson, however, is one of hope and not of pessimism, for it not only uncovers the evils of society and the moral diseases that ravage it, but it also points to the cure. The kernel of the story is the placing of the sound sterling manhood of the hero, Jack Frohisher, an Australian who has made an enormous fortune and, returning to England, has married the daughter of a poor, in the shallow but treacherous currents of the London drawing rooms. Jack Frohisher endures it for three years, entirely submissive to his wife's will, and then he revolts. His revulsion of temper reconverts him into a lion.

There is an intensely dramatic quarrel between Frohisher and his wife, in which he bitterly anathematizes the society in which he has been living. He announces his determination to return to Queensland and to take his wife and their little son with him. Lady Aletia refuses to go.
But on the day before he is to sail, at an accidental meeting between them in the parlor of Lady Wostorby, a friend, on realizing the anguish that it caused his wife to be deprived of her child, he consents to leave him behind. This concession melts the mother's pride, and she calls to him just as he is leaving and throws herself into his arms. The curtain finally descends here, without another spoken word.

The audience while small was very enthusiastic and the actors were forced to respond to numerous curtain calls.

KICKER'S KOLUM

Boys vs. Sling Shots.
I would like to see the columns of the Gazette to call the attention of the boys of the city and their parents to the city ordinances regarding sling shots. A new generation of boys have grown up and do not know and have not been taught that there is an ordinance positively forbidding the use in any manner of the common rubber or leather sling shots. It is unlawful for the beauty of the city to preserve the birds as to establish parks. Any passerby or spectator would be authorized in compelling any boy to desist from disturbing the birds which are now gathering in such numbers.

PURELY VEGETABLE

GREATEST OF ALL TONICS

Very few persons are able to pass the Spring season with any degree of physical comfort, without the aid of a tonic. Our systems change with the changing seasons, and more is required of the blood, from which source our bodies receive their nourishment and strength, at this particular season than at others.

During the cold Winter months we do not exercise as freely as in warmer weather, the skin is not as active in removing the waste and refuse matter, and the other avenues of drainage are dull and sluggish in their work. Thus the impurities which should pass off are left in the system, and are absorbed into the blood.

When Spring comes and all nature takes on new life, we change our mode of living, and greater demands are made on the blood for nourishment and strength to enable us to meet the changed conditions. But the Winter accumulations have polluted the blood and destroyed its nutritive qualities to such an extent that it is not able to supply the increased needs of the system, and we suffer in consequence.

Our physical machinery seems to get "out of gear," and suffers from debility, weakness, nervousness, loss of appetite, etc. Sleep is not refreshing, there is a constant worn-out feeling, and we do not feel equal to performing the ordinary duties of daily life.

When the system is in this disordered condition it must have assistance; it must be aided with a tonic, and it should be a medicine which has the additional qualities of a first-class blood purifier, for to restore health the blood must be cleansed of all impurities.

S. S. S. is the best Spring tonic, and it is recognized as the oldest and best blood purifier. It is made entirely of roots and herbs of the forests and fields, and as it does not contain the slightest trace of mineral in any form, is especially adapted for a systemic remedy, and has the additional value of being absolutely safe for young or old. S. S. S. re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, rids the body of that run-down, worn-out feeling, improves the appetite and digestion, and brings about a return of health and strength to those whose systems have been weakened and depleted. S. S. S. acts more promptly and satisfactorily than any other medicine, and those who are beginning to feel the need of a tonic to fortify themselves against the unpleasant conditions which come with Spring, should commence its use at once. Not only will it tone up the system, but it will remove any humor from the blood, and prevent an outbreak of Eczema, Acne, Tetter, Poison Oak, Poison Ivy, or other skin disease or eruption, which is so common at this season. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores.

NEW THEORY SUCCESSFUL IN INDIANAPOLIS

L. T. Cooper Makes Many Converts During Stay in That City

The new theory (backed up by his preparation) advanced by L. T. Cooper with regard to the cause of most ill health of the present generation is being won broadcast by this young man. "Cooper believes that the human stomach has become degenerate in civilized races and claims that good health is impossible unless the stomach is re-vitalized. This he claims to do with his preparation. An article from the Indianapolis Star during Cooper's stay in that city has this to say of Cooper and his preparation: "Residents of this city are being astounded by L. T. Cooper and his new preparation. "Reports that preceded Mr. Cooper's visit here told of his success in other localities, but the immense success of his medicine and the general belief in his theory was wholly unprecedented. "So great is the rush of the public to this young man that people stand in line waiting their turn for hours in an effort to see him. The most interesting feature of this is statements made by reliable citizens as to the actual accomplishments of Cooper's medicine. Among recent statements of this character the following is a fair example: "Mr. B. F. Campbell, of 3224 Wood Washington Street, had this to say of his experience with Cooper: 'I have been a victim of stomach trouble for the past five years—stomach and suffering pain all the time. Everything I ate distressed me. I have been under the treatment of many physicians, and have taken all kinds of medicine, none of which afforded me relief. I was greatly discouraged, and was about ready to give up, when Mr. Cooper came to this city to introduce his preparation. "I was skeptical, of course, after spending so much money and taking such a large quantity of medicine, but, like the drowning man, I was ready to grab at a straw, so I secured some of Mr. Cooper's New Discovery medicine and began taking it. It seemed to help right from the first dose. I have been taking it for several weeks, and can now eat heartily and enjoy my meals for the first time in five years—eat anything, without pain or distress of any kind. I feel like a new being—life is worth living now." Let us explain Mr. Cooper's remarkable medicine to you if your general health is not all that it should be. —E. B. McIntire."

THE CAPTAIN OF THE KANSAS

By LOUIS TRACY.

Author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY EDWARD J. GLOBE

"Now in the world did he come to own land there?"

"It was a gift from the Naquilla tribe. He defeated an attempt made to oust them by a big land company. The company has since asked me to sell the property and offered me a fair price, too, as the cultivable land is a very small strip, but it would be almost like betraying the cause for which he fought, would it not?"

"Yes, indeed," agreed the doctor, though his heart and not his head dictated the reply. "May I ask you to tell me your plans for the future?" he went on.

"Well, when Mr. Baring heard I was going to England he was good enough to promise me employment in his London agency as Spanish correspondent. That will fill in two days a week. The rest I can devote to art. I put a little and draw with sufficient promise to warrant study, I am told. Anyhow, I am weary of teaching. I prefer to be a pupil."

"I cannot imagine what the young men of Valparaiso were thinking of to allow a girl like you to slip off in this fashion," said Christobal, with a smile.

"Most of them hold firmly to the belief that a wife's wedding dress should be made of gilt-edged scrip."

"Poor material—very poor material out of which to construct wedded happiness. And as to my young friend, Isabel—who joins her aunt in London, I hear?"

"That is the present arrangement. She means to have a good time, especially in Paris. I should like to live in Paris myself. Dear old London does not appeal so thoroughly to the artist. Yet I am content—yes, quite content."

"Then you have gained the best thing in the world?" cried the doctor, throwing out his arms expansively.

The two became good friends as the voyage progressed. Christobal was exceedingly well-informed and delighted in a thoughtful listener like Elsie, Isabel, being at times of the count, would join in their conversation and display a spontaneous interest in the topics they discussed. There were only six other passengers—a Baptist missionary and his wife, three mining engineers and an English globe trotter, a singular being who appeared to have roamed the entire earth, but whose experiences were summed up in one of two words—every place he had seen was either "fair" or "rotten."

Even Isabel failed to draw him further, and she said one day in a temper, after a spirited attempt to extract some of his stored impressions: "The man reminds me of one of those dumb 'books you see occasionally lying in calf and labeled 'Gazetteer of the World.' When you try to open a volume you find that it is made of wood."

So they nicknamed him "Mr. Wood," and Elsie once inadvertently addressed him by the name.

"What do you think of the weather, Mr. Wood?" she asked him at breakfast.

He glanced to notice that she was speaking to him.

"Botten," he said. Perhaps he wondered why Miss Maxwell flushed and the others laughed. But in actual fact he was not far wrong in his curious choice of an adjective that morning. Dr. Christobal's dinner forbidding had been justified on the second day out. London clouds, a sudden sea and occasional puffs of a stinging breeze from the southwest offered a sorry exchange for the sunny skies of Chile.

"Though the Kansas was not a fast ship, she could have made the entrance to the strait of Magellan on the evening of the fourth day had not Captain Courtney wished to navigate the most dangerous part of the narrow by daylight. His intent, therefore, was to pick up the Evangelist's light about midnight and then crack ahead at fourteen knots, so as to be off Felix point, on Desolation Island, by dawn.

This was not only a prudent and sea-mannish course, but it would conduce to the comfort of the passengers. The ship was now running into a stiff gale. Each hour the sea became heavier, and even the 8,000 tons of the Kansas felt the impact of the giant rollers on her starboard bow. Dinner therefore promised to be a meal of much discomfort, cheered only by the knowledge that as soon as the vessel reached the lee of Desolation Island the giant waves of the Pacific would lose their power and all on board would enjoy a quiet night's rest.

There were no absentees at the table. Dr. Christobal strove to enliven the others with the promise of peace ere many hours had passed.

"Pay no heed to those fellows," he cried as the ship quivered under the blow of a heavy sea, and they heard the third of many tons of water breaking over the bows and fore hatch, while the defeated monster washed the tightly screwed port with a voluminous wash. "They cannot harm us now. Let us rather thank kindly Providence, which provided Magellan's waterway. Think what it would mean were we compelled to weather the cape."

A spiteful sea sprang at the Kansas and shook her from stem to stern. The ship groaned and creaked as though she were in pain. She staggered on an instant and then swung irresistibly forward with a fierce plunge that made the plates dance and cullery rattle in the hold.

"I suppose we must endure five hours of this," said Elsie bravely.

"I don't like it. Why does not Captain Courtney or even Mr. Boyle put in an appearance? I have hardly seen either of them since the day I came aboard."

"All ladies like to see an officer in the salon during a storm," commented Christobal. "I plead guilty to a weakness in that direction myself, though I know he is much better employed on the bridge."

A curious shock, sharper and altogether more penetrating than the Thor's hammer blow of a huge wave, sounded loud and menacing in their ears. The ship trembled violently and then became strangely still. The least experienced traveler on board knew that the engines had stopped.

They felt a long lurch to port when the next sea climbed over the bows. At once the Kansas righted herself and rode on even keel, while the stress and turmoil of her fight against wind and wave passed away into a sustained silence.

The half caste stewardess glanced at each other and drew together in whispering groups, but the chief steward, an Englishman, who had turned to leave the salon, changed his mind and uttered a low groan of command which sent his subordinates' attention to their thoughts back to their work.

In the strained hush the running along the deck of men in heavy sea boots was painfully audible. Water could be heard pouring through the scuppers. Steam was rushing forth somewhere with vehement bluster. These sounds only accentuated the extraordinary "traces in the light of ship against sea. The Kansas was stricken dumb if not dead.

"Something has gone wrong," said Elsie in a low voice.

Dr. Christobal nodded carelessly. "A burst steam pipe probably. Such things will happen at times. We are ho to for the moment."

He treated on the ignorance of his hearers. The chief steward heard his explanation and looked at him fixedly. Christobal caught the glance.

"I suppose we shall lose an hour or so now?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. It will be all right by the time you have finished dinner. The meal drew to its close without much further talk. An American engineer was the first passenger to rise, but the chief steward whispered in his ear. He returned to the table.

"Say," he said calmly, "we can't quit yet. The companion hatch is closed. We must remain here a bit."

"Do you mean that we are 'hatched down?'" demanded Isabel shrilly, and her face lost some of its beauty in an ashen pallor.

"Something of the sort, Miss Baring. Anyway, we can't go on deck." "But I insist on being told what is the matter."

"The American knew little of ships, but he knew a great deal about mines, and in a mine if an accident happens the man in charge cannot desert his post to give information to those who are anxious for it. So he replied incoherently:

"Guess the captain will tell us all about it after awhile, Miss Baring."

CHAPTER III.

THE fierce hissing of the continuous escape of steam excited alarm in those not accustomed to machinery. Men and women share the unconscious panic of animals when an unknown force reveals its pent-up fury. They forget that safety valves are provided; that diminished pressure means less risk. The knowledge that restraint, not freedom, is dangerous comes over in the guise of a new discovery.

The mining engineers of course did not share this delusion. "There must be something serious the matter or they would not be hatched power like that," murmured the American to one of his fellow professionals.

"A mishap in the engine room. Nothing is more certain," was the answer in Spanish.

"Wonder if any one is hurt."

The Spaniard bent a little nearer. "What can you expect?" he whispered sympathetically.

In the unnatural peacefulness of the ship's progress, disturbed only by the roar of the superheated vapor, they all heard the opening of a door at the head of the salon stairway. The third officer appeared, his wet clothes gleaming and dripping.

"Dr. Christobal, the captain wishes to speak to you," he said.

Christobal rose and crossed the salon.

"As you are here, won't you tell the ladies there is nothing to be afraid of in the mere stopping of the engines?" he suggested.

"Oh, the ship is right enough," was the hasty response. "There has been an accident in the stokehold. That is all."

"Want any help?" demanded the American.

"Well—I'll ask the captain." Evidently anxious to avoid further questioning, he ran up the companion way. Christobal followed, and the door was closed and bolted again.

"I hate the word 'accident.' It covers so many 'horrid possibilities,'" said Isabel.

"I am afraid some poor fellows have been injured and that is why Captain Courtney sent for Dr. Christobal," said Elsie.

"Oh, of course, I meant that. I was not thinking of the mere delay, though it is annoying that a breakdown should occur here."

"It would be equally bad anywhere else," put in the missionary's wife timidly.

"By no means," was the sharp response. "If we were in the strait, for instance, we could signal to San Felipe or Sandy point, and there would be other vessels passing. Here we are in the worst possible place."

To all appearance, Miss Baring alone among the passengers, now that Christobal was gone, realized vaguely the perilous plight of the Kansas. In a maritime community like that of Valparaiso there was every reason to know and dread the rock bound coast which fringed the southern path toward civilization. Strange, half forgotten stories of the terrors which await a disabled ship caught in a southwest gale on the Pacific side of Tierra del Fuego rose dimly in her mind, and the advancing darkness did not tend toward cheerfulness.

The curious sense of waiting, they knew not for what, which dulled the thoughts and stilled the tongues of the small company at the table soon communicated itself to the stewards. The men stood in little knots, exchanging few words, and those mostly meaningless. But the chief steward, whose trained ear caught the regular beat of the donkey engine, woke them up with a series of sharp orders.

"Switch on the lights," he said loudly. "Clear the table and hurry up with the coffee. Get a move on those fellows, Gomez. Have you never before been in a ship when the screw stopped?"

STRANGE CAREER IS ENDED

DR. J. S. CABANNE OF ST. LOUIS DIES IN AN ASYLUM.

Wealthy and Successful Physician Who Lived a Double Life for Twenty-Five Years.

St. Louis, Apr. 8.—After a career ranging from respect and affluence to poverty and despair, Dr. James Shapard Cabanne, 69 years old, founder of the fashionable residence district known as Cabanne place, died Tuesday at St. Vincent's asylum.

For 25 years Dr. Cabanne lived a dual life in St. Louis, maintaining one home in Cabanne place, where he was known as a wealthy and successful physician, and another in North St. Louis, where he was known as "Mr. Norcia."

Mrs. Cabanne divorced her husband in 1904. Soon afterward he lost his money through unfortunate speculation. Last May, as an act of reparation, he wedded Della Doherty, a former domestic in his household and the mother of four of his children, who with these children lived in the "Norcia" home in North St. Louis.

He secured a position of street inspector, but later lost it. His health declined rapidly and he was taken to the City hospital. Finally he was removed to St. Vincent's asylum, where he died. He at one time unsuccessfully applied to be sent to the poorhouse.

The Wiser Course. Why tear our shirts over politics? The wiser course would be to so improve business conditions that we may be able to buy more shirts.—Nashville American.
